

Vollara Corporate

We are enjoying a rare confluence of good timing, the right experience, strong finances and competitive ownership.

Vollara: America's Next Network Marketing Giant

"Everything isn't the way we want it yet, but work with us and trust us. We are totally committed. You can take that to the bank."

Networking programs come and go, and the marketplace is Ownership plenty competitive. The owners of Vollara have acquired a dozen companies in the past 25 years and they've always been successful. It is crucial when you build a network to have your company stay around long term so you can cash in. As the 2nd Baby Boom moves into full swing, committed ownership is of unsurpassed importance.

Joe Urso, Dallas, TX, is the principal owner. Upon meeting Joe, Ambition your impression might be that you have met the consummate business executive and gentleman. He is those things. He is also one of the most ambitious and competitive corporate leaders you will ever meet. "We're going to build Vollara into the best and biggest network marketing company in the world You can take that to the bank."

[From a field leader...] "When I first heard Mr. Urso talk about his investment background, I was blown away by the variety of companies that make up his résumé. Twenty- five years ago he was part Business Achievements of an investment team that took over an ice company in New York City. Before all was said and done, they changed the company's course and grew it into one of the largest milk distribution corporations in America. Many other successful projects have followed."

Urso says, "Through all these years of developing and rebuilding companies—always making a profit, I might add—I've always wanted to buy a network marketing business and build the kind of company Network Marketing every self-employed entrepreneur wants to be a part of. For my partners and me, this is the final opportunity we have been preparing for. Everything isn't the way we want it yet, but work with us and trust us. You can't miss."

"For Vollara to work for us, it has to work for you. Think about this. My partners and I have an excellent track record, we are highly ambitious, we are absolutely committed, we have a financial base Your Opportunity, too! and we're smart enough to know we have to make it work for YOU or it won't work for us. Joining Vollara can definitely make you healthier, and it might make you rich. Your commitment can be modest or gigantic. We'll love you no matter what."

Using leverage, a woman with a crowbar can open a locked door. Her strength is the same, but her power is greater. Network Marketers gain leverage in many ways. Instead of using just their own time, they benefit from time Leverage invested by others. Instead of working in just one state, they can build a downline in 50 states. Instead of being limited by their own recruiting and leadership talents, they can harness the talents of hundreds, even thousands of other people. Your path to success will be based on building more legs and "deeper" legs.

Our goal is to be the BIGGEST and BEST Network Marketing company in the world, and we are not shy to say so. As we climb toward our goal, wouldn't you like to be able to say you were there in the very beginning? Our compensation plan is the biggest and best. Huge incomes are available and the group you build will have staying power. In the next few days and months, if you'll start bringing prospects to this presentation, we'll help you build a future. We have the right products, the right owners, the right timing, a free recruiting system and a high-paying compensation plan. Now is the time!
